10TH ANNUAL OVPARKS OPEN HOUSE IN 2024

OVParks had their first open house, which is an event that gives the community its first opportunity to sign up for our summer programs and learn more about the programs we offer. While this is an excellent opportunity to plan your summer, we also wanted to make sure that the whole family could have fun at this event. There are hot dogs, snow cones, and popcorn for everyone to snack on as well as a bounce house and face painting for the kids to enjoy. Many of our summer class instructors come to our open house and put on demonstrations for the community to see. We will have wonderful performances from our Aikido class, the Valkyrie theater, Shotokan karate class, Jazzercise, and others, as well as booths for additional programs. This gives you the opportunity to see what the programs are like and personally meet the instructors.

and entertainment, you can register with our summer programs, many of whom are offering day-of-deals. This will include anything from money off the top, a percentage off their programs, or free class materials. However, these deals are only available during open house, so you must be present to register with these deals.

Two of our biggest summer programs are our swim lessons and Rec'ing Crew summer camp, which fill up very quickly. Open House is an excellent opportunity for anyone interested in these programs as this is the earliest opportunity to register. As swim registration starts the week of May 6th this event provides a two-week early registration for residents and non-residents. This fun event is Saturday, April 20th from 12-1:30pm at the Orangevale Community Center. We can't wait to see everyone there!

ORANGEVALE POST OFFICE/MAIL DELIVERY (1891-1930)

It was reported in August 1891 that “A post office has been granted to Orange Vale colony and W. H. Edwards will be appointed postmaster.” That post office was operated out of his home on the corner of Chestnut and Central Avenues which became the Wahrhaftig residence (6501 Chestnut). The contract to carry the mail from Folsom to Orange Vale was held by Mrs. Kate Foster who ran a feed stable and horse boarding business in Folsom. At that time, 40 adult residents were receiving mail. In 1892, at the age of 16, Harry L. Landis was the first paid rural carrier between Folsom and Orangevale. Mr. Edwards held that position for two years.

In 1893, Charles Smith took over as postmaster and had the station in his home which was also on Chestnut Avenue. He had a large window in the front of his home taken out and converted into mailboxes so the people could get their mail without entering his home. In 1895, Edith Beauchamp took over for a 4-year term. Postmaster Jay H. Smith was next and while he was not related to Charles Smith, he rented a portion of the Smith home and operated out of the area converted at the front of the house. At some point in the next year numerous mailboxes were placed in Orange Vale for the “convenient distribution of mail matter.” Under those conditions, residents received mail only once a week.

In 1900, the area was assessed to establish a free mail delivery rural route and the post office at Orangevale was abolished. The rural route carrier would pick up mail delivered to Folsom via train from Sacramento and Rural Route #1 between Folsom and Fair Oaks/Orangevale country began on June 4, 1900. This route handled 8,000 pieces of mail matter monthly. J. F. Korte was appointed mail carrier with J. H. Norton as substitute. The route was 23 miles long and for this labor, the carrier was said to be poorly compensated, having to furnish his own rig and keep it in repair, and receiving only $500 per year.

Boxes were placed at intervals along the line of the route, where mail for those living off the line could post and receive letters and parcels. They could also purchase stamps and procure money orders. Mail for those on the route was addressed to Folsom, Rural Route No. 1. By the following year, the rural carrier also became an agent for the daily Sacramento Bee, Record Union, The Saturday Evening Post and the San Francisco Call papers. At that time, the rate for letters and packages was .02c for first ounce and .02c per additional ounce and the postcard rate was .01c.

By September 1903, house to house service began and C.E. Ward of Orangevale succeeded J. F. Korte as carrier on Route 1. John Hammond Owen took over as mail carrier in May 1905 and many others filled in as carriers between then and 1909 – G.P. Cater, James P. Jones, E. C. Meader, Ray Smith, and Ralph Currier. The position paid $75 a month. During this time, the wives and children of the carriers would cover the route, as needed.

W. F. Jeffs was next appointed rural letter carrier and became the first to use an automobile on the route. Apparently, road conditions were bad back then, and the route was revised many times because of it. The post office warned Orangevale residents that they were responsible for keeping the rural roads in good condition and unless this was looked after, routes would continue to be revised, making delivery very unpredictable. Mr. Jeffs held the position as carrier for 19 years, purchasing, at his own expense, a Ford touring car in 1923 which allowed for better service on his route. In 1925, it was noticed that a red star was added to his uniform. The red star was awarded only to carriers who had given the government at least 15 years of efficient and satisfactory service. After suffering a stroke in 1929, Mr. Jeffs retired and George Thomas (Tom) Johnston was appointed rural mail carrier in 1930.

THE REAL IMPACT OF GOING GREEN

Supervisor Sue Frost

The Real Impact of Going Green By Sue Frost

As a Sacramento County Supervisor, I prioritize the safety and well-being of our community above all. California’s ambitious goal to achieve zero carbon emissions by 2030 is a testament to the state’s leadership in addressing climate change.

Among the measures taken to meet this goal, the California Air Resources Board’s decision to ban the sale of new gas furnaces and water heaters starting in 2030 stands out. This policy aims to reduce our reliance on fossil fuels, a significant step toward a cleaner, more sustainable future.

However, while the intentions behind such policies are commendable, they often come with unintended consequences. For instance, the largest contributor to modern wildfires in our state is not the appliances in our homes but the high-voltage transmission lines that crisscross our forests. These lines, essential for transporting electricity—much of which is imported due to California’s dependence on solar and wind power—pose a significant risk of sparking wildfires.

The ban on single-use plastic bags in 2014 aimed to reduce plastic waste and associated emissions. Yet, a report by the California Public Interest Research Group “CALPIRG,” found that the amount of discarded plastic bags per capita increased since the ban’s implementation. The thicker “reusable” bags, often used once and discarded, have contributed to a nearly 50% rise in plastic waste. This outcome underscores the complexity of environmental policymaking and the need for careful consideration of policy effects.

Another critical issue is California’s water management. The lack of investment in water storage and conveyance has exacerbated cycles of floods and droughts, contributing significantly to greenhouse gas emissions. This oversight not only undermines our environmental goals but also affects the state’s agricultural productivity and the livelihoods of countless Californians.

The push for electrification, including the expansion of electric vehicle (EV) charging infrastructure, is part of the state’s strategy to reduce emissions. However, last summer’s heatwave-induced blackouts, which led to restrictions on EV charging, highlighted the fragility of our current electrical grid. These incidents serve as a stark reminder of the challenges we face in transitioning to a more sustainable energy system.

Additionally, the economic impacts of these policies cannot be ignored. The construction industry, for example, has been hit hard by the increased costs associated with meeting new environmental standards, making homeownership even more elusive for many Californians.

The recent controversy over gas appliances and the Berkeley ordinance banning gas infrastructure in new constructions has sparked a heated debate. While the Ninth Circuit Federal Court of Appeals struck down Berkeley’s ban, the broader issue of transitioning away from natural gas remains contentious. Many residents and businesses are concerned about the implications of such bans on their daily lives and the economy.

While the state’s efforts to combat climate change through ambitious goals like zero carbon emissions by 2030 are laudable, we must also critically assess the broader implications of these policies on our community’s safety, well-being, and economic stability. The unintended consequences of well-meaning initiatives, from increased wildfire risks due to overreliance on electric power to the paradoxical rise in plastic waste following bag bans, underscore the need for a more nuanced approach to environmental policymaking.

About the only thing that I can grow well in my garden is parsley. This weekend, as I was caring for my parsley, I kept thinking of the dish that my husband's co-worker had made for us. She made Tabouli which is a fresh and delicious Middle Eastern/Mediterranean salad. This salad is wonderful when you want to eat healthier and it is perfect for summer, so keep the recipe handy for when the tomatoes and cucumbers ripen. There are many variations of this recipe, so I altered one to make it similar to the dish that we were given.

If you would like to share a favorite summer recipe, please send a copy to Suzanne Feblowitz at the Orangevale View (editor@ovview.com). Be sure to include your phone number or email with your recipe in case we need to contact you. If you wish to remain anonymous, just let us know and we will omit your name.

TABOULI

1 cup water, boiling
1 cup fine cracked wheat (bulgur)-I found mine in the health food section- (Bob's Red Mill)
1 cup minced fresh parsley leaves
5 large fresh mint leaves, minced
6 green onions, finely chopped/sliced
3 tomatoes, diced
2 cucumber or one large English cucumber, peeled and

diced
3 tablespoons olive oil
3 tablespoons lemon juice, or to taste

1 teaspoon sea salt or kosher salt
In a large mixing bowl, pour the water over the cracked wheat and cover, let stand about 20 minutes until wheat is tender and water is absorbed. Add the chopped herbs and vegetables and toss with the mix. Combine the oil, lemon juice and salt in a separate bowl. Add to wheat mixture and mix well. Chill. Serve and enjoy.

Note: Eat Tabouli with crisp hearts of romaine lettuce leaves or serve as a side dish.

CASA BASKETBALL COACHES HONORED TO LEAD NORTH OPTIMIST BASKETBALL TEAM

Congratulations to Casa Roble High School's basketball coaches Nate Gilbert, Jason Taylor and Shane Scott for being recognized and honored to lead the Small Schools North Optimist basketball team and to Casa Senior Travis Remly for being selected to play. This recognition not only marks a milestone for Casa basketball but also highlights the tireless commitment of the Casa Roble coaching staff. "It is an honor for our staff to be selected as Optimist Small Schools North coaches," said Casa Head Basketball Coach Nate Gilbert, "This shows me that all the hard work and time that my team has put in over the past three years is getting noticed."

Their selection reflects years of dedication to Casa Basketball and a relentless pursuit of excellence. However, the coaches remain focused on their ultimate goal: securing a section and state title!

The All Star Optimist Games have been around since 1978, bringing together the best in the area to play in north versus south games, raising funds for the many worthy programs including helping disadvantaged youth, hosting sporting events, giving scholarships, and numerous other programs.

Coach Gilbert extended his gratitude to the community, the Casa administration, and especially the coaches wives, recognizing the crucial support they provide.

The game was played at Sacramento High School on April 4, 2024. Congratulations to all for their participation!

"BELLA VISTA BRONCOS HELP KIDS IN THE COMMUNITY"

On Saturdays from March 2-23, Junior Varsity Coach Kari Masters and many players from the Bella Vista Girls basketball teams coached local kids aged 4-9 at Rusch Park in Citrus Heights through the Sunrise Park district. It was an extremely successful program. Boys and girls were instructed on the fundamentals of basketball while the high school players learned coaching and leadership skills under the direction of Coach Kari, who is a well-known, accomplished and experienced local basketball coach of many years.

Parent Brittany Woodward had this to say about the program, "My daughter was so excited to go back every week and learn new basketball skills and play games with her coaches. She is already signed up for the next session!" Another parent, Tanaiya Crisp, had this to say, "CONTINUE ON PAGE 17"

LOCAL CONTRACTORS RECOGNIZED

ORANGEVALE HISTORY MUSEUM RECOGNIZES LOCAL CONTRACTORS

By MaryAnne Povey

The Orangevale History Museum, in collaboration with the Orangevale Chamber of Commerce, hosted a special recognition ceremony to honor six local contractors who generously donated their time, materials and expertise to remodel the museum's kitchen and archive room and to complete some landscape improvements.

Mark Aring, President of the History Project welcomed the attendees and invited Board member Marilyn Edwards to say a few words about the contractors being recognized.

"The whole effort of coming together has been a labor of love and when each of these contractors were asked to assist, they said 'yes' without hesitation, and for that, we are extremely thankful."

County Supervisor Sue Frost was on hand to present framed Certificates of Appreciation to the following contractors: Dave Hollars of Kitchen Mart, Josh Penuel of Just Perfect Floors, Jeff Weiss of Par Painting, Daniel Noonan of Independent Plumbing, and Dave Cerrie of Cerrie Construction. Darren Lang of Easystumps was also recognized for his efforts in removing large tree stumps on the property, spreading wood chips among other landscape improvements.

Supervisor Frost thanked the contractors for selflessly volunteering their time and materials to add the final touches to the interior of the OV History Museum, showcasing their dedication to giving back to the community. Their combined efforts not only enhanced the museum's facilities but also demonstrated the spirit of unity and cooperation among local businesses and other volunteers.

Frost's presence underscored the importance of community involvement and collaboration in preserving and promoting local history.

One of the memorable moments of the evening was when Sue Frost and Barry Ross, former OV Parks Administrator, placed their orange on the museum's Legacy Tree, symbolizing their commitment to the preservation of Orangevale's rich heritage. This symbolic gesture served as a reminder of the deep-rooted connection between the community and its history.

Orangevale Chamber of Commerce Celebrates Ribbon Cutting at GROCERY OUTLET
By MaryAnne Povey

In a show of community support, the Orangevale Chamber of Commerce recently held a ribbon-cutting ceremony to recognize the new ownership of Grocery Outlet Orangevale, warmly welcoming Paul and Roman Kellner to the helm. The event brought together community leaders, representatives from our elected officials, and members of the public to celebrate the new beginning.

Since its inception in 2018, Grocery Outlet has become a staple in the Orangevale community, known for offering quality goods at discount prices. Since taking over in January, Paul and Roman Kellner have wasted no time in implementing improvements throughout the store. Their efforts have included expanding the fresh produce section, restocking and rearranging all areas for a better shopping experience, and introducing an innovative wine computer that allows customers to view reviews and pick the perfect bottle from a wide variety of options.

The ceremony was not just about cutting a ribbon; it was about the Kellners' dedication to enhancing the shopping experience for their customers and their commitment to the community. Representatives from Congressman Kevin Kiley, Assemblyman Josh Hoover, and Supervisor Sue Frost's office, were on hand to offer their congratulations and present proclamations to the new owners, recognizing their efforts and contributions to the community.

Paul and Roman are the third owner/operators of the Grocery Outlet in Orangevale, and their vision for the store is clear. They aim to build on the foundation laid by their predecessors, ensuring the store continues to serve the needs of the community. Their focus is on improving and expanding the store's offerings, and their commitment to providing customers with not only great value but also a diverse and high-quality shopping experience.

If you haven't been by in a while, come check it out. And be sure to say hi and introduce yourself to Paul and Roman. They look forward to meeting you!

SOME KEY POINTS FOR HOME RENOVATION:

Renovating your house is important in many ways. Relaxation, feeling of vitality in an environment called home. The costs we have to plan for, on the other hand, we usually decide to renovate every few years, so the result of our decisions will be with us for a few years. Here we decide to talk about some key points for home renovation.

First of all, consider the available budget and prioritize your needs. What we expect to achieve. After that, consult with professionals who can establish a logical relationship between your budget and your needs and provide you with their experience.

Finding clues that will have a great impact on your home with less trouble and cost, such as changing the color or changing the lighting of your home. The exterior color of your house is like a stylish dress that attracts all the attention and you will enjoy it. Removing unnecessary items from the living environment and using new accessories such as vases, mirror picture frame and other...

Undoubtedly, the kitchen is one of the most important roles in the spirit and freshness of a house. Experience shows that the kitchen is one of the most important priorities in renting or buying a house, especially for women. These days, the kitchen is one of the parts of our parties where guests and hosts spend time. Imagine an island where everything is there. The kitchen can also include all kinds of work and costs, small changes such as changing the sink and counter or backsplash to complete renovation by replacing all the cabinets...

The bathroom is an impressive environment with a wide range of choices. Considering the budget and health of the bathroom and toilet, many changes can be made with a small cost, such as changing the vanity, mirror and accessories. Of course, renovating the entire bathroom can be great.

At the end, your budget and priorities along with the experience of an expert can lead you to the best result and make the most efficient decision.
